High Chairs

Mom's and Dad's are loving the extra time they get at home to finish cooking, actually eat their meal, and clean up while baby happily plays in the high chair with the Busy Baby Mat. Babies are happier when they are up at a level where they can see what's going on in the kitchen. Parents are happier when baby is happy AND they don't have to pick up toys every 30 seconds!

Shopping Carts

Helps Baby's Development
Encourages Self-Feeding

Food pieces do not slide around on the non-slip surface, making picking up food easier Attach utensils to encourage learning without constant dropping Great for transition to table

Promotes Motor Skills

Place mats on mirror or glass window surface and let toys hang down. Hanging toys motivate babies to stand, helping to develop balance and leg strength. Babies love to thread the tether through the hole in the mat, increasing finger dexterity

Bolsters Education

Strengthens understanding of cause & effect, boosts problem solving skills Spurs visual tracking and hand-eye coordination Allows for sensory exploration of a variety of textures & surfaces Allows for exploration of spatial relationships & movement Provides opportunity for practicing persistence

Embedded Suction Cups Keep the Mat in Place!

The Busy Baby Mat has a powerful suction cup in each corner embedded into the attachment point on top of the mat. When you press down on the ergonomic attachment points, you ensure a tight suction seal! These suckers stick really, really well on any smooth, flat, clean surface.

TIP: Keep it clean! Food-Grade silicone has a tendency to attract dust or lint, it's just the nature of the material. Dust, lint, and crumbs etc. will prevent the suction cups from making a good seal. If we had used the additive that deflects the dust and lint, the product would no longer be food safe! The solution is simple...wipe the surface and the suction cups with a baby wipe before placing it on the surface.

DISCLAIMER: Not all surfaces are stick-able with suction cups. The key is that the surface is non-porous. The mat will not stick to your grandma's old oak table. We've tested the suction on several types of surfaces; tables, high chairs, and airline trays. It sticks to most, but not all.

Connecting Toys

The end of your tether that has three holes is customizable to fit through or around most of baby's toys. Simply wrap the ball end through or around a toy, pacifier, sippy cup handle, etc, and press it through one of the holes in the tether.

Installing the Tethers

Squiggly End Goes in Mat

The end of the tether that has the 'squiggles' is intended to connect to the mat. The squiggles help absorb some of the pull when baby plays so the suction doesn't break so easily.

How to use the travel sleeve for convenient transport

Removing mat from sleeve

The Busy Baby Mat comes with a convenient travel sleeve for easy transport. At less than half a pound, the mat is light and fits in almost any purse or diaper bag.
